

Candidates for City Board Picked at Public Meet

In a public meeting last night at Junior High School a group of local citizens endorsed seven candidates for the Board of City Directors to be voted on August 14. Those endorsed were:

L. W. Young, Herbert Burns, George Robison, Frank Douglas, George Frazier, Roy Thrash and Sam Andrews. All the men have agreed to serve on the board and petitions have been filed.

Selection of the men followed a general discussion by everyone present. It was generally felt that more capable men would serve in this non-paying capacity if their services were in the nature of a draft movement rather than a political free-for-all.

It was pointed out in the discussion that the entire state of Arkansas is watching this city in its efforts to establish a new form of city government and the more unit and cooperation citizens can show the greater the impression and the better chance for progress and growth.

Douglas Jester, salesman, objected to the members selected by the group, basing his objection on the fact that included were three band directors, two retired men and that no grocer was represented. He indicated that he knew of at least three, petitions being circulated for candidates other than those listed, including himself. However, he did not name the other.

To become a candidate the name of any citizen can be placed on the ballot by petition of 50 signatures of qualified voters.

Last night's meeting resulted from a previous meeting in which citizens, including many present last night, discussed candidates.

There was one dissenting vote on the group selected to run. Attending the meeting last night and agreeing to publicly endorse the seven men board were:

Norman Moore, Frank Horton, George Peck, Garrett Willis, Elmer Brown, Dewey Baber, A. S. Willis, Fred Russell, Kelly Walton, Robert Wilson, Roy Anderson, J. V. Moore, W. S. Atkins, Albert Graves, L. B. Tooley, Harry Shiver, W. H. Gunter Jr., Bill Mudgett, John L. Wilson, R. C. Daniels, James H. Jones, Homer Beyerley, Emil Cardon, Howard Houston, C. V. Nunn Jr., Claud Lauterback, Theo Bonds, E. N. Holt and Mr. Formby.

El Dorado School Wins Nat'l Award

EL DORADO (AP) — The El Dorado school system has received a national award for outstanding improvement in its reading instruction program.

The award was made at Concordia College, Morehead, Minn., to J. Kendall Hogard, director of the El Dorado program, and G. A. Stubbledick superintendent of El Dorado schools.

Dr. Emmett Belts, director of the Belts Reading Service, made the award.

No Contest of Petitions to Refer Sales Tax

LITTLE ROCK, (UP) — Secretary of State C. G. Hall said today there had been no contest of the petitions to place the three percent sales tax referendum on the 1958 general election ballot.

Last night was the deadline for filing opposition to the petitions circulated by Hope Newspaper Publisher Alex Washburn. Hall said today he had received no contests and had heard of no one who might question the signatures on the petitions.

Hall previously had approved the ballot title and certified the referendum to the general election ballot. Last night was 15 days after the petitions had been filed with the secretary of state, June 12.

Washburn led a statewide campaign for signatures to petitions to refer the tax to the people at a special election and at the next general election. He abandoned the idea of a special election, and concentrated on signatures to refer to the general election.

Hall said it would be difficult to contest because of the large number of signatures. Washburn filed petitions bearing about double the number of names required for referral.

Pentagon Politics in Nickerson Trial

By BEM PRICE
HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The court-martial of Army Col. John C. Nickerson Jr. was up to its ears today in Pentagon politics and the interservice feud over roles and missions.

Nickerson took the witness stand in his own behalf yesterday. The defense has sought to paint Nickerson as a staunch patriot. The prosecution has been building toward a picture of the 41-year-old combat veteran as a stubborn man of poor judgment with selfish interests.

Nickerson, who wears two Silver Stars for gallantry in World War II, already has pleaded guilty to and been convicted on 15 charges that he permitted unauthorized persons to see secret defense data.

Many Great Men Had a Common Aliment - Gout

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Reverie at the typewriter keys:

What did Alexander the great and John Barrymore have in common?

A thing shared by Kubla Khan, Guy de Maupassant, Martin Luther, John Wesley and Isaac Newton. It also knitted together Charles Darwin, Tallyrand, Samuel Johnson, William Pitt, Alfred Tennyson, Gen. Winfield Scott, Edward Gibbon, Francis Bacon, and William Harvey, who discovered the circulation of the blood.

All these famous men—soldiers, statesmen, scientists, poets, philosophers and scholars—are linked by one thing: They all suffered from gout, the disease of greatness.

A question that fascinates many people is "If you could afford to live anywhere in the world, where would you choose?"

I have asked this question of hundreds of people I have interviewed—and many have promptly thrown it right back to me.

Far places lure many people. But when they get right down to facts, most of them admit there are places they merely want

Rockefeller in Praise of Finance Plan

MORRILTON, (AP) — Winthrop Rockefeller said today that the new Arkansas Industrial Finance Corp., will give Arkansas a big advantage over other states in competing for industry in today's tight money market.

The oil millionaire addressed more than 30 business leaders who gathered at Winrock Farm to complete organization of the new AIFC.

Rockefeller said that the industry financing plan would enable Arkansas Industrial Development, which is unable to obtain sufficient private financing in other states. He added that the new corporation will help to expand existing industry as well as lure new plants.

Rockefeller, chairman of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission, and Herbert Thomas Sr., of Little Rock have been serving as co-chairmen on the steering committee for the AIFC.

Officials said that $100,000,000 has been raised through private contributions—some $3,000,000 above the announced goal.

Plans call for raising of another $100,000,000 through the sale of nonvoting stock in the non-profit AIFC. The million dollars is to be used to aid industrial development.

One Person Killed in Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Tornadoes were reported in two places in Mississippi today, one taking a life, as Hurricane Audrey chewed a damage-strewn path up through the state.

One person was killed and two hurt by an early-morning tornado in Neshoba County. At about 7:35 a.m. a tornado hit the small town of Clara in Wayne County, but no fatalities were reported there.

Highway Patrolman Bob Austin of Waynesboro said 10 to 15 buildings, including a large grocery store, were destroyed at Clara. He said several minor injuries were reported but no one was seriously hurt.

Screaming winds and drenching rains caused damage in much of the state in advance of and behind the hurricane.

McClellan Declares Spa Hospital Okay

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) said today a Senate Appropriations subcommittee has written into the defense, appropriation bill a directive that the Army-Navy Hospital in operation at least another year.

The House, in passing the bill, knocked out language which would have directed continued operation of both the Hot Springs hospital and Murphy General Hospital at Wallham, Mass.

McClellan said the language, accepted by the Senate subcommittee, now subject to action by the full committee, does not include provision for continuance of Murphy Hospital.

S. Arkansas Felt Some of Hurricane

By The Associated Press
Southern Arkansas felt some side effects of Hurricane Audrey last night but damage was slight and rainfall was far below expectations. No injuries were reported.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock forecast further wind and heavy rains for southeast and east central Arkansas today.

The forecast for other sections called for scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers through tomorrow with little change in temperatures.

The heaviest rain reported was 1.42 inches at Arkansas City, located on the Mississippi River a few miles east of McGee in southeast Arkansas. El Dorado reported .78 inches and other scattered points reported a half-inch or less.

The storm center was near Memphis early today and was continuing to diminish in power. Winds up to 40 miles an hour were measured to the east of the storm center. Audrey was traveling about 20 miles an hour in an easterly direction.

Senators to Probe Steel Price Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) said today the new steel price increases would be made an issue in the Senate Finance Committee's probe of the nation's financial condition.

U. S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest steel producer, announced last night an increase of about $8 a ton in steel prices effective Monday. Other steel companies are expected to follow suit.

Gore, a member of the Finance Committee, said in an interview that questions about the price boost will be asked when Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey resumes the witness chair before the group Monday.

The steel price increases were announced just a day after President Eisenhower said at a news conference that inflation will become a "real danger" unless business and labor exercise restraint in price boosts and wage demands.

Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wy.) commented that the U. S. Steel boost "must be a disappointing response to a President after he asked the leaders of business to stop inflation by voluntary action."

"It is clear that if the government intends to stop inflation it must take strong measures rather than making amiable and polite requests," he said.

O'Mahoney added that he did believe the administration was getting anywhere "with indirect methods like tight money which hits everyone and not the few."

Sen. Kerr (D-Okla.), who serves on the Finance Committee, said the steel price boost "is certainly another step under an unjustified inflation."

275 Attend Negro Day at Hope Station

Today is Annual Negro Visiting Day at the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station where farm families from 15 counties of Southwest Arkansas were present, along with their local leaders, County and Home Demonstration Assistant Agents, vocational teachers and others, to observe the research work going on at the Station and enjoy the day with old friends. Over 275 visitors were present.

During the morning a tour of the experimental plots included such discussions as proper fertilization of corn. The plots where improper fertilization had been applied the corn was hellow and 6-10 inches high. In other plots with adequate fertilization the corn was dark green and 4-5 feet tall.

The discussion on forestry, a major money crop of Southwest Arkansas, was very interesting to the visitors. It was pointed out that a well stocked and managed woodlot could be made to increase 3 times in volume every 10 years.

One of the experimental woodlots had 2900 B. F. per acre in 1930 now it has 8900 B. F. per acre and during the past 17 years 3500 B. F. per acre has been removed.

The most unusual experiment the visitors saw was 337 kinds of cotton on one acre that was being grown without insect control to see if any was resistant to the boll weevil.

On the Campus were interesting demonstrations on landscaping by J. K. Bull, Extension Horticulturist; safe water supply by James L. Cox, Agricultural Engineer, Arkansas State Electric Cooperative; proper electrical wiring by Tom Edwards, Manager, Arkansas Adequate Wiring Bureau; and an insect display by the Entomology Department, University of Arkansas.

Rev. J. E. Colby, Pastor, Lone Oak Baptist Church, Hope opened the afternoon program with an invocation. The youths put on many interesting and educational talent numbers.

The principal addresses were given by W. M. Pierce, Field Negro Activities, Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation. Mr. Pierce stressed the value of the farm organization as to their benefits to all farm people.

T. R. Betton, Negro Agricultural Agent, pointed out the importance of research to Negro farm families and discussed problems of the small farmer.

A safety demonstration by William Westbrook, Assistant Director of safety, Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation concluded the day's activities.

The visitors returned home at 2:30 with considerable current research and educational information and many inspirations.

Ike Declares Post Hike Inflationary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower was quoted today as saying the proposed $45-a-year pay raise for 500,000 postal workers would mean a "swEEP of inflation." The increase was voted yesterday by the House Post Office Committee.

Rep. Tuber (R-NY) reported the President's views as he and 33 other Republican House members left a White House breakfast. It was the fifth and final one in a series of breakfasts given by Eisenhower for the 200 Republican House members to help improve chances for enactment of his legislative program.

The President will soon have republican senators for breakfast for the same purpose.

Tuber said the subject of the Steel Hike to Cause General Price Increases

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A new round of price increases in the steel industry—the 11th since 1911—began Monday.

U. S. Corp., the nation's biggest steel producer and traditional industry price setter, announced it will increase its basic prices about $6 a ton.

Other steel firms are expected to make similar price adjustments.

Although steel products vary widely in price, the new composite price will be an estimated $146 a ton. It is the sixth boost in as many years. Last year the industry hiked prices $8.50 a ton.

The increase came just a day after President Eisenhower said inflation may become a "real danger" unless management and labor show restraint in wage and price boosts.

Officials in Washington had anticipated a much higher increase, possibly as much as $12 to $14 a ton. Most of them took the attitude that the increase might have been worse, but all agreed it will be inflationary.

Clifford E. Hood, U. S. Steel president, said the increase is necessary to compensate for a company-estimated 21-cent hourly package wage increase effective Monday for the firm's production workers under a three-year contract with the United Steelworkers.

Hood, in Utah for the formal opening of a nitrogen by products plant of U. S. Steel's Columbian Geneva Division, told newsmen last night: "Our price increase has been the result of inflation rather than the cause of inflation."

"I do not feel that this price increase itself should set off another round of price and wage increases in industry."

Avery Adams, president of Jones Laughlin, the nation's fourth largest producer expressed dissatisfaction with the amount of increase.

"The price increase is grossly inadequate insofar as covering our total and anticipated cost increases is concerned," he said.

Consumers can look for the probability of higher prices of items made of steel.

Negro to Trial July 29 for Slaying

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Trial for Leo Lee, 53-year-old Negro charged with first degree murder in the slaying of a Negro postman here Dec. 26, was set for July 29 by Pulaski Circuit Judge William J. Kirby yesterday.

Lee, accused in the fatal shooting of William R. Smith, entered a plea of innocent.

He also is charged with assault with intent to kill in connection with an attack in which a Negro couple was shot and wounded as they sat in a parked car with another couple May 3.

A safety demonstration by William Westbrook, Assistant Director of safety, Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation concluded the day's activities.

The visitors returned home at 2:30 with considerable current research and educational information and many inspirations.

Grid Player, 17 Drowns in Tub

MEMPHIS (AP) — A 17-year-old Memphis high school football player drowned in his bathtub last night.

The youth, Reid MacGruder Chilton, apparently was stricken ill while bathing. Police ruled the death accidental.

Young Chilton was a first string center on Mossick High School's football team last year. He moved here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Sidney Chilton Jr. from Greenville, Miss., in 1948. He planned to enter Mississippi State College next fall.

Child Playing With Atomic Age Death

MIDLAND, Tex. (UP) — Someone in Midland, possibly a small child, is playing with atomic age death today.

Police, highway patrolmen and sheriff's officers combed this oil rich west Texas city of 21,000 today with Geiger counters looking for a small, deadly radioactive capsule stolen from a parked truck yesterday.

The unmarked capsule, nine inches long and an inch and a quarter in diameter is of no value except to a firm like the Western Co., an oil well servicing company from whose truck it was taken.

Police drove through the city last night with a public address system attached to a patrol car, pleading with the person who took the capsule to return it before it is too late.

However, authorities decided to stop using the loudspeaker when citizens, hearing only snatches of the plea, showed signs of panic.

Authorities thought the thief may be a child, since the capsule is of no value to a professional robber. However, two men were seen near the truck and police were attempting to find them.

The handle, in which the capsule is carried, was also missing. Western Co., authorities did not know if the capsule was already in the handle or if the thief knew enough to place it in the handle.

A mere touch would produce severe burns. Longer contact would mean death.

Another possibility occurring to police, even more frightening, was that the thief, upon learning what he had stolen, threw the capsule away where an unsuspecting person might come upon it.

Police said the object was used as a perforating tool by the Western Co. Western officials were also joining in the search.

Officers said no house-to-house search was planned today, but all available men would be used in the hunt.

Actually Toll Is Unknown in Louisiana Area

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—Hurricane battered southwest Louisiana counted a mounting death toll today with official and unofficial estimates ranging from 200 to 4,000 fatalities.

Official sources have accounted for 100 dead, 87 of them in storm and wave ravaged Cameron Parish. But one Cameron Parish deputy said he believed the toll would reach 3,000 to 4,000.

The Weather Bureau in Washington said its latest reports from the battered area indicated 200 to 300 persons had been killed in the Cameron area since Hurricane Audrey smashed into southwest Louisiana yesterday.

Capt. W. L. (Bill) Price, skipper of a New Orleans rescue boat that brought 400 refugees to Lake Charles earlier today, said Cameron Parish Sheriff O. B. Carter told him "at least 200 persons are dead in Cameron."

The hurricane roared into the Texas and Louisiana coasts yesterday and earlier reports said 15 were lost and presumed dead. Some of the victims were dupliated in today's reports.

Heavy rescue teams probed the marshlands for victims or survivors. Some reports said bodies were located floating on debris miles from Cameron.

Deputy Sheriff D. P. Vincent of Cameron Parish was among 40 survivors brought in on the Coast Guard boat Blue-Bonnet shortly after daybreak today. He said he believed "4,000 to 4,500 drowned" as the huge tidal waves swept inland.

The report of 87 dead at Cameron by police radio came after earlier tolls placed the storm's victims at 18. Five of the 18 were from Cameron.

Although there was no official estimate of casualties, the Red Cross here said they knew of at least 1,000 persons in the Cameron area who did not evacuate as Audrey moved toward the coast.

Ken Dixon, managing editor of the Lake Charles American Press said he believed the fatalities would easily run into several hundred.

Const Guard Chief Bontswain's Mate E. L. Bagler, who piloted the boat that brought in Vincent and the other survivors, said when informed of Vincent's estimate:

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Disaster officials laboring with thousands of refugees left homeless in the wake of hurricane Audrey lent support today to reports the death toll along Louisiana's coast could reach into the thousands.

While there was not official estimate of casualties, Red Cross officials here said they knew of at least 1,000 people in the Cameron area who did not evacuate as the ravaging hurricane moved inland early yesterday.

Deputy Sheriff D. P. Vincent of Cameron Parish county told news:

Judge Lyle Brown today entered an order directing that Irwin be held at the State Hospital. Judge Brown said negotiations are under way to have Irwin transferred to his home country since he cannot be put to trial.

George Irwin, charged with the knife slaying of his estranged wife, Willie Mae Irwin, on May 14, near Washington, has been declared insane by the medical staff of the Arkansas State Hospital.

The report of the medical staff, filed today in the Hempstead Circuit Court, declared the 24-year-old Negro defendant to have been mentally ill on the date of the alleged crime as well as during the period of the examination.

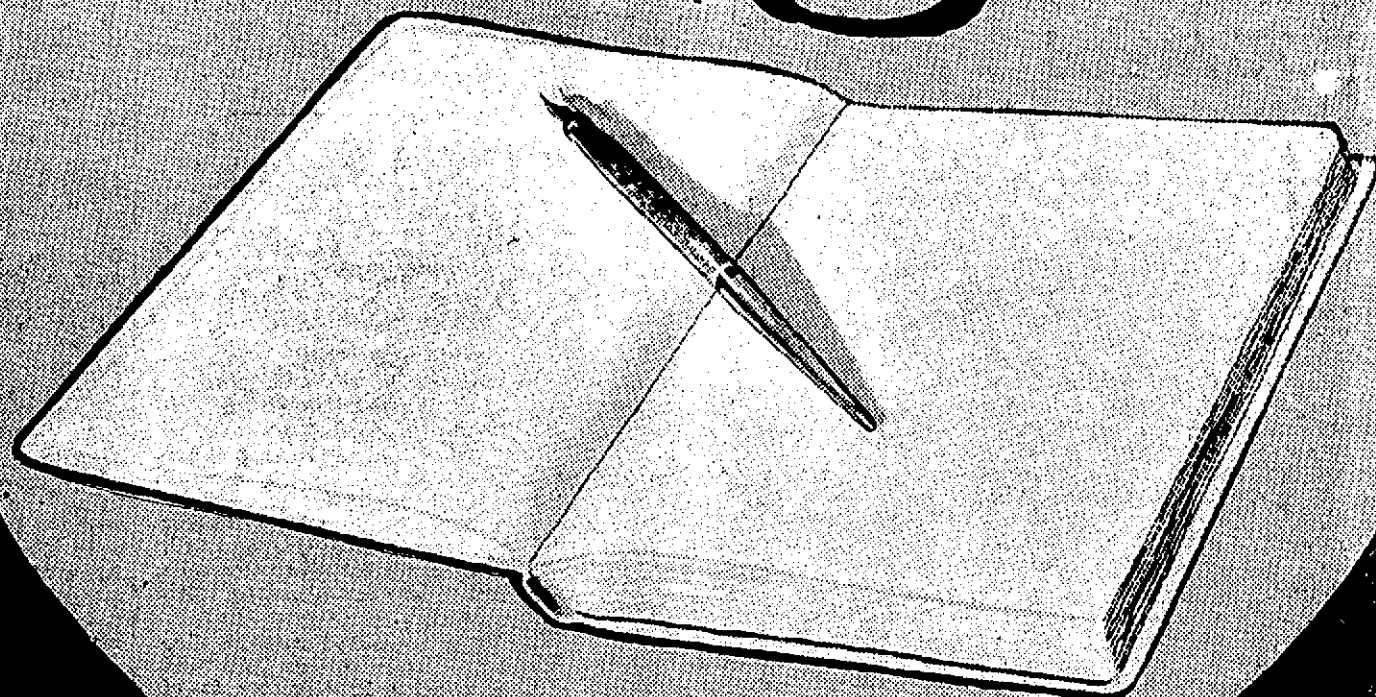

Irwin whose home is in Jamaica, West Indies was in this country as a laborer. According to Sheriff Jimmie Cook, Irwin deserted the labor squad and remained in the United States illegally. He married Willie Mae Wade, whose divorce suit was pending at the time of her death.

One of the toughest decisions to make is when to start being middle-aged.

Snake Flushes Pair Sought by Police

DECATUR, Ala. (AP) — A fisherman and his wife, sought in the death of a Little Rock, Ark., man, were flushed out of hiding by a snake yesterday.
 Jeff Mitchell, 29, and his wife, Pauline, were captured when they sought treatment at Arab, Ala., for Mrs. Mitchell, who had been bitten by a snake.
 The couple was charged with murder in the fatal beating of John W. Smith, 63, Smith's body was found on the Tennessee River bank Monday.
 Mitchell told officers his wife was bitten by a large snake as they walked at the foot of Whitesburg Mountain early yesterday. Police said the snake probably was a copperhead.

Shopping Center in L. R. Planned

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Plans for a large shopping center in western Little Rock were announced yesterday.
 Park Plaza, Inc., said the cost of the center will be "staggering" when the figures are released. The anticipated capital of the firm, which filed articles of incorporation yesterday with the secretary of state, is $100,000.

Buzzed Farmer Once Too Often

LOCKHART, Tex. (AP) — The third time an Army liaison plane buzzed him while he walked in his field, farmer Robert Le Barling said, he picked up his shotgun and blasted the small craft full of buckshot. Barling, 35, was charged in the Court of Justice of the Peace W. H. Hill with firing a weapon from an airplane.
 The pilot, without the plane back at Camp Gray Army Airfield, was ordered to land.

News From State Capitol

State Capital Bureau

LITTLE ROCK, June 28 (Special). One thing is leading to another in the incident found between the Crittenden County and the state administration political "machines." So far, Jim Hale, the lawyer who speaks for the powers-that-run Crittenden County affairs, has been able to counter successfully every move by Governor Faubus to curb his influence.

It's not one of those open fights — both Hale and Faubus are observing the impositions and they are burning no bridges as yet.

The governor would have been willing to burn one bridge earlier this year, if he could have found a member of the legislature willing to light the spark. Mr. Hale is a member of the Police Commission, by appointment of former Gov. Frances Cherry. The Governor wanted him off the Commission, but Mr. Hale wouldn't take the hint.

So the administration had a bill drawn to abolish the Police Commission as presently constituted. It was handed to Senator Marshall Shackleford of El Dorado to sponsor. After carrying it in his pocket several days, he chose not to introduce it. Nothing further was heard of it.

The Crittenden County organization, one of the few remaining in the state which can deliver its votes with near unanimity, supported Cherry in 1952 when Faubus was campaigning for his boss, the then Gov. Sidney McMath who sought a third term. Naturally, Crittenden County stayed with Cherry in 1954 when Faubus got the nomination, and just as characteristically (it is always willing to support a state administration that helps maintaining local political dominance through friendly election commissions) Mr. Hale and his cohorts contributed to the Faubus majority in 1956.

But before committing itself, the Crittenden County machine had Faubus's promise to go all out for pro-segregation legislation in 1957. The governor was not happy about the situation when the bills, sponsored by Crittenden County's senator and representatives, provoked a great outcry from the Arkansas Gazette and Protestants.

Crittenden County held the governor's feet to the fire, and he had to deliver on his campaign pledge. The bills were passed. Up to now, the governor has virtually ignored the existence of the acts. His promise may not have extended to actual application of the new laws, one of which establishes a State Sovereignty Commission that so far has not functioned.

Over in Crittenden County, it is claimed by some who are in position to know that the long track promotion, insofar as the dog people in the county are concerned, started with the governor's office revelation of the plans for construction and licensing of the track — conditioned on assurance of a satisfactory vote in a special election on the issue. No election was held, but the dog track has been operating. Crittenden County has been condemned by bitter opponents of dog racing, some of whom have credited Faubus with trying to stop it. That has not endeared the governor to Mr. Hale and the latter's associates.

Then came the flare-up over the Weights and Standards Division of the State Police. Theoretically, the Police Commission selects the personnel, but it has always been customary to consult the governor's office. At the beginning of the Faubus regime, Gray Albright was displaced (though retained in a subordinate capacity) as chief of the Weights and Standards Division. That job was turned over to Bob Faust, who had been the nominal campaign manager for Faubus in 1952. Thereafter, the Division was loaded with strictly political selections — among them one longtime Faust friend with a professional gambling background.

Holdover Police Commission members were not pleased, but being in the minority, couldn't do anything except register their protests. The Faubus administration doesn't regard it as just coincidence that two members of the Weights and Standards Division happened to be indicted in Crittenden County on bribery charges.

One immediate effect of the indictments was to accelerate Weights and Standards Division activities. The number of special permits for over-weight vehicles, and revenue therefrom, suddenly doubled. The Division's crews were hauling and weighing more vehicles and requiring permits for all carrying cargoes in excess of the tonnage authorized.

Some of the interests affected went to the governor with complaints. He responded with his notice to the State Police to disregard the law and Highway Department policy with respect to house trailers. The law places a 96 inch width restriction on trucks and trailers, with the Highway Commission having authority to grant emergency permits for large vehicles under certain conditions.

The 1957 legislature passed, but Governor Faubus vetoed, a bill that would have permitted transportation of mobile homes more than 96 inches in width and more than 50 feet long on payment of a $5 to fee Weights and Standards Division. Now apparently the governor wishes he had not vetoed the measure, for his letter to the State Police was a virtual directive to follow the provisions of the vetoed bill.

Weights and Standards Division Director Faust is faced with a dilemma. Shall he adhere to the policy recommended by the governor to whom he owes his job or shall he carry out the instructions of the Police Commission (one member of which is Mr. Hale of Crittenden County)?

Mr. Faust's first answer to that question was an affirmation of his intention to continue working for the State Police Commission.

Bachelor Says Single Women Have Complexes

Dear Dorothy Dix: After a study of the single women in my office, I am convinced that any unmarried woman over 25 is a victim of some sort of complex. These complexes can be caused by disapproving courtships, family trouble or association with the wrong men. Unless the trouble is recognized and over come, these women will ruin their few remaining chances of marriage. They are embittered, moody and unstable. That's why men in their late twenties and early thirties prefer younger girls.

Dear Phil: Bunk, bosh and drivel! Your idea of the unmarried woman went out with Queen Victoria.

Today's female is made of ston-ger stuff. Many of them, you'll be astonished to know, are single from choice — their own, that is. Others refuse to compromise with their own ideals, or are waiting for the right man.

Association with you, I'm afraid, will strengthen their conviction that single blessedness is preferable to marriage with a conceited, apologetic, egotistical male.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a sophomore who is very fond of a freshman of the same age. If I date him, will people talk?

SHIRLEY

Dear Shirley: If your dating conduct is proper it will not cause gossip, even if the boy is a grade lower than you.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I know this isn't in your line, but won't you help us girls? We'd like to know if the bust creams advertised in magazines are harmful or not.

ANON

Dear Anon: They may not be harmful but they won't be helpful either. Some things are better left to nature. This is one.

Dear Dorothy Dix: For quite a while I've been part of a very congenial foursome. My particular beau is now in service. He comes home every two weeks or so and we enjoy our usual dates, but the trouble is he never knows when he's coming. He makes arrangements with his buddy, and the other girl calls to give me the

Agent Tells of Meeting With Hoffa

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyer-investigator John C. Cheasty testified today he first turned over Senate Rackets Committee secrets to Jimmy Hoffa in a pre-arranged rush hour conference on a downtown Washington street.

Cheasty fixed the date as Feb. 19 and said he remembered it well because there was a raging snowstorm and Hoffa, Midwest boss of the Teamsters Union, showed up without a hat.

"I commented on that," Cheasty details.

Dear Roma: Don't be afraid to ask for more consideration. If you ask with a smile, your request won't be misinterpreted. Tell the boy you're afraid the girl friend won't relay his message on time, and you'd just hate to take a chance on missing a date. Remind him that a brief message on a card will suffice.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Last fall I wrote you requesting suggestions as to how a single woman in her 30's could meet eligible men. Among the suggestions you made was the "Y." Our "Y" has nothing for people in their 30's, but I joined anyway, and attended several of their dances. The fact that 20 and 23-year-old fellows dragged me out on the dance floor has done much to help repair my morale to say nothing of getting the kinks out of my rather rusty dancing. Moreover, through the "Y" I've made some very nice girl friends, and have engaged in interesting activities.

Some of these activities I'd like to pass on to other women. Get into politics, both for the good of your country and your own personal satisfaction. Try sports. My girl friend went strong for ski clubs (she's 39), met and is dating a very interesting man. I've joined the country club. Free use of the greens and club house together with monthly dances make it well worth skipping a few other luxuries to pay the annual dues. Join charity drives. Any one of them will lead to new contacts.

These ideas are working for me. I hope they help others.

A. B.

Dear A. B.: You're certainly headed in the right direction, and I expect a wedding announcement in the not-too-distant future. When a lady sets out to meet a man and fails, it's usually because her one idea was to land an unwary male. Instead, if she enlarges her whole circle of activities to meet new friends, she has a thousand times greater chance of success.

Every activity makes her a worthwhile person, as you very adequately prove. That country club membership fee will probably pay very large dividends.

said, "and Hoffa told me he never wore a hat."

Cheasty, who related that by this time he had secretly told the Rackets Committee he had agreed to spy on its operations for Hoffa, said he told Hoffa about committee plans to investigate West Coast units of the Teamsters Union.

Hoffa and Hyman I. Fischbach, Miami attorney, are jointly on charges of bribing Cheasty to get a job with the Rackets Committee and feed Hoffa the committee's secret plans.

Cheasty said that at the Feb. 19 meeting he told Hoffa about plans to subpoena West Coast Teamsters boss Frank Brewster, Oregon Teamsters chief Clyde Crosby, Chicago labor manager and adviser Nathan Shefferman and Ily Goldbaum, another prospective racket committee witness. All four subsequently did testify.

Cheasty testified yesterday that he and Fischbach went to Detroit to see Hoffa last Feb. 13. He said Hoffa agreed to pay Cheasty $18,000 to get hired as a staff investigator of the Senate committee and slip Hoffa what he could find out.

Among other assignments he got from Hoffa, Cheasty related, was to "check up" on Edward Cheyfitz, a lawyer-public relations man. Cheyfitz is associated with Edward Bennett Williams, Hoffa's attorney at the present trial. Cheyfitz formerly handled public relations for Teamsters President Dave Beck.

Also, Cheasty said, Hoffa wanted him to find out "what Bob Kennedy is doing visiting Ed Williams' house twice a week." This referred to Robert F. Kennedy, chief counsel of the Senate Rackets Committee.

Hoffa told him, Cheasty said, he had arranged for "triple coverage" on the inside dealings of the racketeering committee headed by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark). The two other sources, Cheasty said Hoffa told him, were to be "a fellow" on the staff of the late Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and "one other."

Cheasty said Fischbach later told him "a girl on Capitol Hill" was feeding information to Hoffa. Cheasty testified that as soon as he could, after returning from Detroit to New York following the conference with Hoffa, he secretly contacted the Senate Rackets Committee's New York office and told Kennedy all about his deal with Hoffa.

Sen. McClellan and Kennedy have said previously that they told Cheasty to "play along" with Hoffa. They allowed Cheasty actually to deliver secret committee files to Hoffa before he was arrested by the FBI on the present bribery-conspiracy charges.

Alien Census Shows 2,218 in Arkansas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last January's census of aliens in the United States showed a total of 2,833,732, of which 2,218 were in Arkansas, the Immigration Service reported today.

The national figure represented an increase of 7.5 per cent over the previous year. New York led the states in number of aliens with 550,097. Only Mississippi (2,108) had fewer alien registrants than Arkansas.

The Immigration Service conducts an alien census each January under a law requiring every alien in the country in that month to report his current address.

According to the report, Germany led all other countries in Arkansas' alien representation with 452 persons. Great Britain and Canada showed a combined total of 177.

Arkansas' largest county, Pulaski, also led the state in number of aliens, 460. Sebastian County had 318, Washington 143, Garland 120 and Mississippi 111.

There was only one registered alien in Calhoun County, two each in Dallas, Pike and Woodruff, and three each in Baxter, Izard, Lafayette and Scott.

What's Your Story?

...what? You haven't written one? Then you'll be surprised to know that you write a line every day. God laid clean white pages before you and challenged you to give an accounting of your days on earth... one by one. What you write may embarrass you or it may make for happiness. One fact is sure. It becomes a permanent record. Every day comes from God. He offers us new opportunities with the dawn of each new day... opportunities to write with integrity and trust and genuine goodness. What will you write today? Were you a blessing to another? Did you attend church this week? Have you helped the poor? What are you writing? What's Your Story???

YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that the young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a molding religious character. In the church the ministerial and the layman alike can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you" form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCHGOER and a daily BIBLE READER.

News From State Capitol

State Capital Bureau

LITTLE ROCK, June — (Special). One thing is leading to another in the incipient feud between the Crittenden County and the state administration political "machines." So far, Jim Hale, the lawyer who speaks for the powers-that-run Crittenden County affairs, has been able to counter successfully every move by Governor Faubus to curb his influence.

It's not one of those open fights — both Hale and Faubus are observing the amenities and they are burning no bridges as yet.

The governor would have been willing to burn one bridge earlier this year, if he could have found a member of the legislature willing to light the spark. Mr. Hale is a member of the Police Commission, by appointment of former Gov. Frances Cherry. The governor wanted him off the Commission, but Mr. Hale wouldn't take the hint.

The administration had a bill drawn to abolish the Police Commission as presently constituted. It was handed to Senator Marshall Shackleford of El Dorado to sponsor. After carrying it in his pocket several days, he chose not to introduce it. Nothing further was heard of it.

The Crittenden County organization, one of the few remaining in the state which can deliver its votes with near unanimity, supported Cherry in 1932 when Faubus was campaigning for his boss, the then Gov. Sidney McMath who sought a third term. Naturally, Crittenden County stayed with Cherry in 1934 when Faubus got the nomination, and just as characteristically (it is always willing to support a state administration that has a main taining local political dominance through friendly election commissioners) Mr. Hale and his cohorts contributed to the Faubus majority in 1936.

But before committing itself, the Crittenden County machine had Faubus's promise to go all out for pro-segregation legislation in 1937. The governor was not happy about the situation when the bills, sponsored by Crittenden County's senator and representatives provoked a great outcry from the Arkansas Gazette and Protestant ministers.

Crittenden County held the governor's feet to the fire, and he had to deliver on his campaign pledge. The bills were passed. Up to now, the governor has virtually ignored the existence of the acts. His promise may not have extended to actual application of the new laws, one of which establishes a State Sovereignty Commission that so far has not functioned.

Over in Crittenden County, it is claimed by some who are in position to know that the long track promotion, insofar as the dog people in the county are concerned, started with the governor's office revelation of the plans for construction and licensing the track — conditioned on assurance of a satisfactory vote in a special election on the issue. No election was held, but the dog track is operating. Crittenden County has been condemned by bitter opponents of dog racing, some of whom have credited Faubus with trying to stop it. That has not endeared the governor to Mr. Hale and the latter's associates.

Then came the flare-up over the Weights and Standards Division of the State Police. Theoretically, the Police Commission selects the personnel, but it has always been customary to consult the governor's office. At the beginning of the Faubus regime, Gray Albright was displaced (though retained in a subordinate capacity) as chief of the Weights and Standards Division. That job was turned over to Bob Faust, who had been the nominal campaign manager for Faubus in 1932. Thereafter, the Division those who had wronged him, he rose to a height of magnanimity and forgiveness.

The whole record of the life of Joseph shines with brightness out of far-off and dark time. He was great by Christian standards.

Nor is the case of Joseph exceptional. Out of the darkest times and situations men and women of unsullied character appear. And even in families like that of Joseph and his 12 sons, who exhibit much of evil, some, like Joseph, shine as if their environment had been the best.

I have often wondered what may be the underlying psychological and spiritual causes in such cases. A college classmate, no longer living, was a profane and blasphemous character, yet his older brother followed in the footsteps of David Livingstone as a missionary in Africa, where he achieved greatness in the building of a Christian community.

Yet these brothers came from the same home, and the same city environment. Possibly a thoroughgoing study of the good that emerges in times and environments of evil, and of the evil that emerges in times and environments of good, might do much toward creating conditions uniformly good.

But a deeper thought is of the good and evil that is in all of us. What was the event determining point at which the good or the evil gained the upper hand in the contested characters? Is there, too, that "decisions for Christ" restore the right path when a wrong turning was made?

DOROTHY DIX

Bachelor Says Single Women Have Complexes

Dear Dorothy Dix: After a study of the single women in my office, I am convinced that any unmarried woman over 25 is a victim of some sort of complex. These complexes can be caused by disappointed courtships, family trouble or association with the wrong men. Unless the trouble is recognized and over come, these women will ruin their few remaining chances of marriage. They are embittered, moody and unstable. That's why men in their late twenties and early thirties prefer younger girls.

Dear Phil: Bunk, bosh and drivell! Your idea of the unmarried woman went out with Queen Victoria.

Today's female is made of ston-

selection was loaded with strictly political selections — among them one longtime Faust friend with a professional gambling background. Holdover Police Commission members were not pleased, but being in the minority, couldn't do anything except register their protests. The Faubus administration doesn't regard it as just coincidence that two members of the Weights and Standards Division happened to be indicted in Crittenden County on bribery charges. One immediate effect of the indictments was to accelerate Weights and Standards Division activities. The number of special permits for over-weight vehicles, and revenue therefrom, suddenly doubled. The Division's crews were halting and weighing more vehicles and requiring permits for all carrying cargoes in excess of the tonnage authorized.

Some of the interests affected went to the governor with complaints. He responded with his no plan to the State Police to disregard the law and Highway Department policy with respect to house trailers. The law places a 96 inch width restriction on trucks and trailers, with the Highway Commission having authority to grant emergency permits for large vehicles under certain conditions.

The 1937 legislature passed, but Governor Faubus vetoed, a bill that would have permitted transportation of mobile homes more than 96 inches in width and more than 50 feet long on payment of a $5 to fee Weights and Standards Division. Now apparently the governor wishes he had not vetoed the measure, for his letter to the State Police was a virtual directive to follow the provisions of the vetoed bill.

Weights and Standards Division Director Faust is faced with a dilemma. Shall he adhere to the policy recommended by the governor to whom he owes his job or shall he carry out the instructions of the Police Commission (one member of which is Mr. Hale of Crittenden County)?

Mr. Faust's first answer to that question was an affirmation of his intention to continue working for the State Police Commission.

Agent Tells of Meeting With Hoffa

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyer-investigator John Cye Cheasty testified today he first turned over Senate Rackets Committee secrets to Jimmy Hoffa in a pre-arranged rush hour conference on a downtown Washington street.

Cheasty fixed the date as Feb. 19 and said he remembered it well because there was a raging snowstorm and Hoffa, Midwest boss of the Teamsters Union, showed up without a hat.

"I commented on that," Cheasty

details. — ROMA
Dear Roma: Don't be afraid to ask for more consideration. If you ask with a smile, your request won't be misinterpreted. Tell the boy you're afraid the girl friend won't truly his message on time, and you'd just hate to take a chance on missing a date. Remind him that a brief message on a card will suffice.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Last fall I wrote you requesting suggestions as to how a single woman in her 30's could meet eligible men. Among the suggestions you made was the "Y." Our "Y" has nothing for people in their 30's, but I joined anyway, and attended several of their dances. The fact that 20 and 23-year-old fellows dragged me out on the dance floor has done much to help repair my morale to any nothing of getting the kinks out of my rather rusty dancing. Moreover, through the "Y" I've made some very nice girl friends, and have engaged in interesting activities.

Association with you, I'm afraid, will strengthen their conviction that single blessedness is preferable to marriage with a conceited, opinionated, egotistical male.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a sophomore who is very fond of a freshman of the same age. If I date him, will people talk?

SHIRLEY
Dear Shirley: If your dating conduct is proper it will not cause gossip, even if the boy is a grade lower than you.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I know this isn't in your line, but won't you help us girls? We'd like to know if the bust creams advertised in magazines are harmful, or not.

ANON
Dear Anon: They may not be harmful but they won't be helpful either. Some things are better left to nature. This is one.

Dear Dorothy Dix: For quite a while I've been part of a very congenial foursome. My particular beau is now in service. He comes home every two weeks or so and we enjoy our usual dates, but the trouble is he never knows when he's coming. He makes arrangements with his buddy, and the other girl calls to give me the said, "and Hoffa told me he never wore a hat."

Cheasty, who related that by this time he had secretly told the Rackets Committee he had agreed to spy on its operations for Hoffa, said he told Hoffa about committee plans to investigate West Coast units of the Teamsters Union.

Hoffa and Hyman I. Fischbach, Miami attorney, are jointly on charges of bribing Cheasty to get a job with the Rackets Committee and feed Hoffa the committee's secret plans.

Cheasty said that at the Feb. 19 meeting he told Hoffa about plans to subpoena West Coast Teamsters boss Frank Browder, Oregon Teamsters chief Clyde Crosby, Chicago labor management adviser Nathan Shusterman and Hy Goldman, another prospective rackets committee witness. All four subsequently did testify.

Cheasty testified yesterday that he and Fischbach went to Detroit to see Hoffa last Feb. 13. He said Hoffa agreed to pay Cheasty $18,000 to get hired as a staff investigator of the Senate committee and slip Hoffa what he could find out.

Among other assignments he got from Hoffa, Cheasty related, was to "check up" on Edward Cheyfitz, a lawyer-public relations man. Cheyfitz is associated with Edward Bennett Williams, Hoffa's attorney at the present trial. Cheyfitz formerly handled public relations for Teamsters President Dave Beck.

Also, Cheasty said, Hoffa wanted him to find out "what Bob Kennedy is doing visiting Ed Williams' house twice a week." This referred to Robert F. Kennedy, chief counsel of the Senate Rackets Committee.

Hoffa told him, Cheasty said, he had arranged for "triple coverage" on the inside doings of the rackets probing committee headed by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark). The two other sources, Cheasty said Hoffa told him, were to be "a fellow" on the staff of the late Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and "one other."

Cheasty said Fischbach later told him "a girl on Capitol Hill" was feeding information to Hoffa.

Cheasty testified that as soon as he could, after returning from Detroit to New York following the conference with Hoffa, he secretly contacted the Senate Rackets Committee's New York office and told Kennedy all about his deal with Hoffa.

Sen. McClellan and Kennedy have said previously that they told Cheasty to "play along" with Hoffa. They allowed Cheasty actually to deliver secret committee files to Hoffa before he was arrested by the FBI on the present bribery-conspiracy charges.

Alien Census Shows 2,218 in Arkansas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last January's census of aliens in the United States showed a total of 2,833,732, of which 2,218 were in Arkansas, the Immigration Service reported today.

The national figure represented an increase of 7.5 per cent over the previous year. New York led the states in number of aliens with 550,007. Only Mississippi (2,108) had fewer alien registrants than Arkansas.

The Immigration Service conducts an alien census each January under a law requiring every alien in the country in that month to report his current address.

According to the report, Germany led all other countries in Arkansas' alien representation with 432 persons. Great Britain and Canada showed a combined total of 477.

Arkansas' largest county, Pulaski, also led the state in number of aliens, 480. Sebastian County had 318, Washington 143, Garland 120 and Mississippi 111.

There was only one registered alien in Calhoun County, two each in Dallas, Pike and Woodruff, and three each in Baxter, Izard, Lafayette and Scott.

men when he arrived on a Coast Guard boat early today he believed "3,000 to 4,000 drowned" a tidal wave swept over the marshland.

Of the thousand refugees pouring into Red Cross shelters, few were from the Cameron area which bore the brunt of the storm. Unofficial death toll grew to 48 as the Red Cross said another 30 were believed lost at Cameron, in addition to the 13 deaths reported earlier.

Vincent came in with other battered survivors on the Coast Guard vessel Blue Bonnet. When told of Vincent's estimate, Chief Boatwain's Mate E. L. Beeler said:

"It's hard to tell how many died. So many people talk of losing families of six or nine."

Another survivor on the Blue Bonnet spent the weekend with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Moseley of Warren spent Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. D. L. Moseley.

M-Sgt. and Mrs. Leon R. Crofford and daughter Mrs. Leo Seymour, who have been stationed at Schofield Barracks territory of Hawaii for the past three years left Sunday after a visit with Mrs. Edna Brasher and Billy and W. R. Crofford of Ft. Sill, Okla., where Sgt. Crofford is now stationed.

Misses Ann and Sue Fincher of Jonesboro were the weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Cummings and attended funeral services for their paternal grandfather, C. C. Fincher, in Waldo Sunday.

Bonnet, an old woman counting her fingers, said, "I lost all my six children."

The Red Cross disaster headquarters released a 12-name casualty list, five of which were from the Cameron hurricane. Abel LaBlanc, a Negro whose two children are missing, said a 15-foot tidal wave hit their big home.

There was still no report on the fate of 150 people believed to have ridden out the storm in Pecan Island, about 50 miles east of Cameron. One Pecan Island evacuee said earlier "everything as washed away and just floating around."

A Coast Guard plane flew over Cameron late yesterday and reported "a tremendous amount of destruction." The pilot said the town was under water and buildings demolished.

Audrey Lashed Louisiana and Mississippi with high winds and heavy rains as it veered to the northeast. It was located 80 miles south of Memphis, Tenn., this morning.

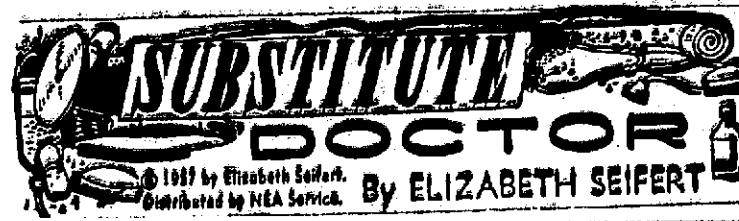

The Coast Guard also reported an offshore oil rig capsized about 20 miles east of the Texas border and five men were adrift on a raft. Coast Guard cutters were told to search the area en route to Cameron.

State police and National Guardsmen tried to reach Cameron yesterday, but failed. They rescued six persons in one family stranded on the floating rooftop their house for eight hours. A seventh, 28-year-old Granville Thieriot, was washed off by 20-foot waves and presumed drowned.

The Red Cross sheltered 10,000 in Lake Charles alone and issued food rations to 30,000. Hundreds were evacuated to smaller towns from the Louisiana lowlands and more than 5,000 sought shelter at Port Arthur, Tex., and Orange, Tex. Thousands remained at evacuation centers.

The Red Cross said 168 injured were treated at Lake Charles hospitals, but most for minor injuries.

Larry Stephenson, civil defense director for Lake Charles, broadcasting over amateur radio facilities while the city was cut off from the outside early last night, said virtually every house in the city of 65,000 received some damage.

XXII

Garde had expected that the clinic would build up, starting with a first day when, possibly, only one or two children would appear, perhaps even none. With that slow build-up in mind, he scheduled a clinic for every Saturday of the first month, expecting to settle into a twice-a-month schedule in August. On the first Saturday, 25 children appeared and were examined. He never had less than 25 at any clinic, and sometimes there were more, each accompanied by a mother in various stages of anxiety, temper or independent hostility, which meant a lot of personalities crowded into the waiting room, a lot of people for Valley Stanfield to see and listen to and interview. Her job was to get and keep the records — names, ages and addresses. When the child had last seen a doctor, what immunizations had been given and when what diseases had been experienced, what injuries, what surgery — all this to be set down on the initial visit, and the information added to as data was accumulated in the office. The children must be talked to under doctor's orders, or voluntarily.

It was detailed work, and hard work for this beautiful woman used to success and praise. For Valley was not especially successful in this new field.

"Valley says," Windsor chuckled, "that the view room her desk tells her what to expect to purgatory."

"I wonder," said Cornel — he cut his eye inquiringly at Dr. Windsor, then decided to go on and say it. "I wonder if from her place in purgatory she sometimes glimpses heaven."

Dewey frowned. "You mean Shelton?"

"Well," Windsor conceded, "that might be it. I hadn't thought of it — but, yes, that would explain why she endures purgatory."

Whatever Valley wore, whatever she did, the beautiful girl who sat out at that desk on Saturday mornings made things harder for the doctor. And certainly she needed the man he was. Nan would have been much better — in all ways.

Valley was like — well — like a nectarine. A dead ripe one, golden and firmly sweet, with a hint of tartness to excite one's taste. Glowing red at the core, a nectarine was an exotic sort of fruit, beautiful and exciting and rare.

He snorted at his flight of fancy, but stayed with it. So — what would Nan be?

Well, Nan was — was like an apple. Maybe. Yes, that would do it. An apple was a bit of fruit that took handling. A man could tuck an apple into his pocket, to relish when he was hungry or tired. An apple was a satisfying sort of fruit. And really good. Not easily bruised, not rare — but very good. A lot more people ate apples than ever got to taste nectarines.

"If you'd just try to like the children," Miss Stanfield, the nurse on duty had suggested that morning.

Valley shrugged her beautiful shoulders. "Why bother? They are all little monsters, and my school of thought says 'Drown 'em while they're pups.'"

That morning Garden had asked her, casually enough, "Miss Stanfield, would you underdress Johnny while the nurse helps me with the older child Undress him and weigh him."

Valley had been clumsy and shocked. His skin was ingrained with dirt — and he smelled.

Of fish, for one thing. She showed her distaste in an announcement of the fish smell.

"He's got a right to smell of fish," said the stately mother. "Fish earns us our keep."

She was forced to recognize that her wide expanse of ignorance was due directly to her deliberate aversion toward all things medical. She had no medical information at all, and the simplest processes could amaze her.

Let a baby sneeze. . . .

"He's catching cold," Miss Stanfield would offer with the brashness of voluntary information which Garde had not yet trained out to her.

"Naw, he ain't," instructed the mother. "Sneezin' don't mean a thing. Babies just try out all the new things in life, sneezin' and yawnin' and blowin' and smartin' don't mean nuthin'. You know that?"

Only — Valley had not known

it. And to be so instructed was humiliating. To her.

"What I can figure is why you, or someone like Kurt Lillard, should choose the specialty you did. Your whole lives devoted to sick kids!" she told Garde.

Garde laughed. "Your approach is all wrong. Our lives are evolved to maintaining a world full of healthy and happy children."

"Agghh!" She ran her fingers through her thick hair. "I'm disgusted with the whole project. Garde, I wish Nan had taken your old job."

"Yes, and so do you! Children like Nan. Everyone likes Nan." She broke off, thoughtful.

"That's right," Garde agreed.

"Kurt did, too," said Valley.

"And that awful Ben Laurent. I've often thought," she said brightly, and hopefully almost, "how wonderful it would have been if those two, . . . Nan and Ben were about the same age, you know, and she would have been so good for the boy."

That morning, Garde wanted to shake Valley. Didn't she ever think of the other fellow
